I am a passionate Senior Experience Product Designer and consultant (aka problem solver). All about creating Best-in-Class work. I am often accused that process is my dirty word.

I have lead teams and been a one-man band. One team that organized and built a design system for a worldwide organization with over 200 ongoing internal and external products. Skilled in working with application owners, project managers and development teams to achieve successful product launches. I always approach products from the user perspective and work with users to determine their needs. My goal is to do whatever it takes to help my company and project succeed.
